Cover Letter for personal writing

This is my first time writing a piece with a unique focus on my life. An authentic look at the past that made the present me. A deep look into a specific moment in life allowed for extensively detailed writing which enlightened me in a new way of conveying emotion through text. Taking the reader on a scripted journey of your emotions allows for a better understanding of whatever you're writing. It could convey your opinion on a song more efficiently or it could open the door for some kind of argument of an opinion. Specificity and details work in tandem to make a more believable story and even a respectable opinion.

The pacing and order of this piece of writing have gone through many rearrangements and even a total scrap. Balancing the explanation/ impact and the context can be challenging when they mix throughout the writing. The importance of pacing in literature is essential in conveying the main theme or message in writing. This paired with picking the right language to lead the reader is an exceptional and essential skill in literacy that I hope to master in the future.

The main theme that I hope presented itself in the writing was that Self-growth (sometimes) naturally happens over time. We often see maturity and intelligence go hand in hand. Although sometimes we get stuck in a loop of negative feedback whether it be from ourselves or external forces. The toxic chatter and response can hinder our growth and confidence and self-esteem. Both are essential in the development of a successful and happy person. A great tool to combat this sabotage is introspection. Introspection allows for a 3rd person to view on your own life. Almost like a coach overlooking their team for flaws and mistakes to draw out their maximum potential. This method of self-improvement greatly helped me on my journey through school and will keep assisting me throughout my college experience. I hope introspection helps whoever needs a new outlook on their life.

Overall, this assignment allowed me to hone my skills in analyzing the opinions and flow of other writing. I even had a more enjoyable time reading the music textbook which had me clawing my eyes out whenever the author went on some mad goose hunt in history without starting a new chapter.
